the debate about the performance of us students on international assessments of educational achievement routinely fails to account for one consistently stark result us achievement is bifurcated between a group of high performing asian and white students and an exceptionally low performing group of black and hispanic students by summarizing results across 20 major international tests conducted since 1995 this research paper shows that when us racial and ethnic groups are separately compared with other countries asian and white students regularly perform at or near the top of international rankings while black and hispanic students typically rank at or near the bottom furthermore the united states has a substantially larger minority population than all other developed countries and minority status is not synonymous with internationally comparable factors such as socioeconomic level or immigrant status the fact that overall us scores are disproportionately influenced by race and ethnicity suggests that researchers and reformers must reconsider how they use and interpret the results of international achievement tests the research paper recommends providing and analyzing cross national data separately by ethnic groups to inform approaches to improving education for all students this book examines the impact of and response to the rapidly growing english language learner ell populations in the southeastern united states on k 16 schooling using examples of policy and practice from seven states alabama arkansas florida georgia north carolina and tennessee the book explores how the contemporary context of accountability regimes and neoliberal tenets affect educational responses to the increased linguistic and cultural diversity in schools and how these realities may be different from when traditional states such as california or florida were developing their responses to im migration the collection of chapters addresses key questions of teacher preparation effective infrastructures and frameworks for serving ells dual language bilingual education and advocacy efforts at the state district and local level in the southeast the authors describe promising practices in each state but also note the need for more systemic statewide approaches that resist the enduring monolingual discourse that has historically characterized much of ell schooling they call for transformative policies and practices that take current research into account and that stress the centrality of pluralistic principles to design effective schools for ells
