this is the final volume in brunilde sismondo ridgway s series of books covering the entire range of greek sculpture from its inception to its virtual end as it merged into the production of the roman imperial world volume iii discusses sculptural works both architectural and free standing from approximately 100 b c to the battle of actium 31 b c which removed from power the last hellenistic ruler although some monuments may belong to the years just before or just after this timespan ridgway s aim is to concentrate on works plausibly dated to the first century b c even those with highly controversial chronologies famous sculptures the laokoon the epic groups from the sperlonga cave the belvedere torso the bronze boxer in the terme museum and many others are discussed together with less well known pieces ridgway gives special emphasis to the finds from two shipwrecks the mahdia and the antikythera wrecks that provide a reasonable terminus ante quem and argues that many of the stylistic trends and decorative objects usually considered typically roman instead have their roots in the greek world this last hellenistic phase is perhaps the most interesting of the three because it documents to a great extent the transformation of the products of one culture into those of another with different interests and priorities far from being an unimaginative inferior output driven by commercial considerations the statuary of the first century b c is vibrant and inventive drawing from many sources in a stylistic eclecticism many of the beings in this book cheiron pan acheloos the sirens and others will be familiar from the narratives of greek mythology in which fabulous anatomies abound however they have never previously been studied together from a religious perspective as recipients of cult and as members of the ancient pantheon recent years have seen an increase of interest in classicism and the reception and survival of antiquity classical reception studies is a rapidly developing field of research and teaching and a growing number of new scholars are investigating issues of reception of classical texts ideas performance and material culture across different cultural contexts and in different media this volume adds new perspectives in this growing field of scholarship this collection of essays explores the uses of the past from a wide range of perspectives the papers are drawn from a spectrum of cultures and chronological periods from medieval to modern times from italian to byzantine from french to british the characters involved in each case study accessed the past through different means employing varying combinations of texts oral traditions iconographic representations and visible remains of the landscape it is a snapshot of a field in movement illustrative of current directions and hopeful of producing new ones the legacy of antiquity is omnipresent and is as multifaceted as suggested by the wide range of the papers this volume presents new perspectives dealing with ever elusive enigmas and opening the way for future research and investigation to all those who seek to explore the constant fascination with the antique in this iconological study the author demonstrates the invalidity of the current interpretation of the relief on the so called peleus and thetis sarcophagus in the villa albani in rome an interpretation which goes back to winckelmann by applying a modern art historical method he arrives at a fundamentally new interpretation it becomes clear that the splendid sarcophagus in the villa albani is highly characteristic of academic art of the hadrianic era the unique nature of the representation on the albani sarcophagus which consists mainly of allegorical figures makes it an excellent point of entry for the interpretation of mythological scenes applied in a funerary context
